A parent's choice

I'm a single mom with not enough money to go around, and I'm not sure what Pinellas School Board chairwoman Janet Clark is trying to tell me about my daughter. When Taylor was ready to enter kindergarten, I applied to five different Pinellas County public schools and was rejected by all of them. So I chose a Tax Credit Scholarship, and it has been a blessing. The school she attends, St. Petersburg Christian, has helped her blossom academically and socially.

I now read that Clark wants to take my choice away, and it makes me wonder. Are you telling me you know what Taylor needs to succeed better than I do?
