Parents satisfied with voucher program

My husband and I are delighted that our son was able to benefit from the Step Up For Students voucher. This has helped us choose the proper private education for him, and we were able to make another choice toward our son's education. We are satisfied and pray it stays around for a long time for parents seeking a better education for their children.

The main reason we sought this program was simple: We didn't like the climate and classroom management of the neighborhood school. We wanted better student discipline and a better learning environment. We feel safer dropping our son at school in the morning with more individual attention. At the end of the day, this is what will stay with him. Tax Credit Scholarships can be an effective tool for families of low-income.
